

Silindokuhle Nyezi

Silindokuhle Nyezi is a lecturer at the Department of Nursing and Midwifery at Stellenbosch University where she teaches Primary healthcare-related content in the undergraduate program of the Bachelor of Nursing and Midwifery (R.174).

She began her nursing career after obtaining her Bachelor of Nursing degree from Nelson Mandela University. She continued with her studies and obtained an Honours degree in Advanced Primary Health Care, a Postgraduate Diploma in Health Service Management, and a Postgraduate Diploma in Nursing Education that she attained from Stellenbosch University. She is currently busy with her Master's Degree in Nursing and envisages to continue with her career and research.

Silindokuhle's interest area is Primary healthcare, specifically HIV/TB management. She previously worked for various Primary Healthcare Clinics under the Department of Health and for NGO's. She is also a member of an international nursing society The Alpha Beta Beta Chapter of Sigma Theta Tau International, Honor Society for nurses (Sigma/STTI).

